Participatory rural appraisal

18 February 2020

Participatory rural appraisal (PRA) is an approach used by non-governmental organizations (NGOs) and other agencies involved in community development. Venn diagram was used for PRA. About 20 members from the community participated in the PRA and they had done the PRA themselves. The approach aims to incorporate the knowledge and opinions of rural people in the planning and management of development projects and programmes. The Venn Diagram shows institutions, organisations, groups and important individuals found in the village, as well as the villagers' view of their importance in the community. The size of the circle represents the importance, significance or power of that institutions.
