Centre for Environmental Science, University of Madras

The University of Madras has established a full – fledged Centre for Environmental Sciences (CES) in 2007, with multi-disciplinary facets for carrying out the Research and Development (R&D) and human resources development programmes in the areas of environmental studies in order to effectively tackle the challenges in the field of short term local and long term global environmental change. Moving forward, the CES at University of Madras has been conducting academic programmes, practical, high-quality research that can resolve outstanding environmental issues in the country. The academic programs and activities of the Centre for Environmental Sciences at University of Madras are designed according to the needs and challenges of major industrial sectors, governmental sectors like MHRD, MoEF & CC, CSIR, DST, DBT, MoES, State Planning Commissions and international agencies like WB, UNDP/ UNEP, and various funding institutions.

Department of Geology and Environmental Science, Christ College, Kerala

Christ College, Irinjalakuda was established in 1956. The College has since transformed in to a premier educational institution in the state of Kerala, dedicated to the cause of higher education. It is affiliated with University of Calicut and in 2015 it was elevated to Autonomous status by UGC. For the last two consecutive terms the College was re-accredited with NAAC- A grade, highlighting the merit of the Institution. It is also ranked high among Colleges by NIRF, MHRD, Govt. of India. Department of Geology and Environmental Science was established in 1981 and offer two undergraduate programs in Geology and two postgraduate programs in Applied Geology and Environmental Science. The department also offers a 5-year Integrated M.Sc. program in Geology and Ph.D. program in Geology and Environmental Science under the University of Calicut.

Department of Geology, University of Madras, Chennai-25

The Department of Geology was established in the University of Madras in 1952. The progress of the Department has been consistent over the years and recognizing the advances made with, the UGC has awarded Special Assistance Programme Phase I to the Department for the years 1994-1999. With significant developments in instrumentation facilities, the research activities in the fields of Micropalaeontology and Petrology were started. The UGC had further extended the Special Assistance Programme Phase-II for a period of five years from 2000 to 2005. The Department received research funds from UGC under SAP-DSA Phase II programme for a period of 5 years from 2013-2018. The UGC has also awarded financial assistance under COSIST (ASIST) Programme to develop the infrastructure of the department.

The Department has gained the distinction of being sponsored by the Department of Science and Technology, New Delhi under FIST Programme and has been awarded DST FIST Phase II for the period 2012-2017. The faculty of the Department have been awarded many research projects from DST, UGC, CSIR, INCOIS, CPEPA and MoES. During the past decades, the Department has shown commendable progress and has grown to become one of the premier institutes in the field of geoscience research and teaching in the Country.

About the Webinar

Climate Change is a major issue of concern for the modern world. It leads to the alteration of the world environment as a result of direct or indirect human practices and natural causes, observed over a significant time period. Environmental degradation may occur due to over-exploitation or depletion of natural resources that support life forms of the Planet Earth. The disruption of equilibrium in the ecosystem hinders the existence of life forms in the earth and leads to the extinction of species. The concept of sustainable living is the 'mantra' of present times and the development goal of a nation must be focussed towards this direction. The global goal for a Sustainable Development is aimed at this and the international agencies like United Nations are negotiating hard to bring together all the nations in to it. Hence, now it also the responsibility of the academia to disseminate the knowledge in this domain and discuss the issues and development in this direction.

In this context, Centre for Environmental Studies, University of Madras in collaboration with the Department of Geology and Environmental Science, Christ College (Autonomous) Irinjalakuda, Kerala and Department of Geology, University of Madras, Chennai is organising a Three Days International E-Colloquium on Environmental Degradation and Climate Change on 26th -28th August, 2021. The E - Colloquium is aimed at creating a platform for interaction, knowledge sharing and deeper engagement in the wide areas of environmental degradation and climate change, mitigating its effects and consider different ways to move forward for a sustainable living in our planet.

The meeting will be organized over the virtual Zoom application platform. The registration is limited to 500 participants on first come first serve basis
