Department of Management Studies (ACADEMIC YEAR 2022-2023)

Introduction:

Student-centered learning is an approach to pedagogy that puts the focus on the student rather than on the teacher. It aims to empower learners by giving them more independence and autonomy to direct their own learning experiences. In a student-centered classroom, the teacher serves as a facilitator rather than a lecturer, working together with students as active participants to co-create learning goals and activities. This approach to student learning values communication skills, collaboration and critical thinking skills over rote memorization teaching methods and passive learning. By allowing students to take ownership of their own learning journey, student-centered teaching prepares them for success in real-world situations where adaptability and self-motivation are essential traits.
